PORTFOLIO

Square Alternative Strategies B - EUR finished September down -0.23% and is up +2.24% in 2022, outperforming the HFRX index, which was down -1.23% for the month and -5.81% for the year.

For the first time since the financial crisis of 2008, the markets recorded three consecutive quarters of decline. Inflation, which is still higher and more resilient than expected, is pushing central banks to be very restrictive, leading to a sharp rise in interest rates. In this context, stocks and bonds fell sharply while the dollar appreciated in value against other currencies.

The directional allocation of the portfolio was impacted by an awful month for risk assets. The activist fund TCI was down -12.9% as its concentrated allocation to equities suffered from a sharp decline in the stock market (S&P 500: -9.3%, which was the worst September since 2002).

The "All-weather" allocation had a slightly positive contribution to the performance of the portfolio in September. The systematic strategies have been performing well. The fund of CTAs ACL Alternative (+4.3% in September) gained from its long USD positions against EUR and JPY, and from their short positions in bonds and interest rates. The systematic fund P/E (+6.9% in September) also benefitted from the continued appreciation of the USD against other major currencies (EUR, GBP, AUD, JPY). On the other hand, the multi-strategies funds focused on credit suffered more from the huge reversal in interest rates during September. The distress credit fund GoldenTree was down 3.2%, while the credit specialist Apollo finished the month down 2.1%.

The long-volatility and market dislocation allocation contributed positively to the performance in September. The credit focused relative value Strategy fund SABA (+1.5% in September) mainly gained from its short positions through credit derivatives. The tail hedge fund Kohinoor (+5.8% in September) benefited from high volatility in currencies, interest rates and equity markets.
